Being Represented

It is defended by lenders that declining economic environments justify routine adjustments in their lending terms. When borrowers enter financial hardships lenders implement financial strategies to address institutional risk (solely protecting themselves).

Often times these changes lead to a total breakdown in the willingness and/or ability of the borrower to continue the relationship (i.e., interest rate hikes, accelerated balloon notes, max negative amortization ceilings on home loans, reduced credit lines, reduced or suspended HELOCS, etc.)

The National Employee Benefits Group has the strategic financial restructuring programs that bridge the gap between the borrower/lender relationship and the financial hardships that separate them

All is accomplished through a common sense approach combined with the National Employee Benefits Groups long standing financial relationships with the lending world. Secured with protecting clients' rights through applicable law the end result is respect and resolution for our client (the borrower)

National Employee Benefits Group begins immediately by protecting and insulating the client (borrower) through implementing financial strategies to overcome the effects of changed lending policies (i.e., terms and conditions)

Innovative, yet flexible modification principles result in manageable, acceptable financial solutions. All designed to rehabilitate borrowers in a timely and acceptable time frame as to resume the lender/borrower financial relationship.
