Being A Financial Domme - Not As Easy As It Looks....

Posted January 19th, 2010 at 7:25AM

I am Pampered Blaire,

I have lots of profiles on www.collarme.com, yahoo groups, twitter, etc. I have slaves that want me to use and abuse them for their money. Some like to take me online shopping and buy me whatever they want...others send me gifts in the mail...others just tribute me and send me money in my PayPal account...

It sounds fun and easy...but actually it's a lot of work. You need to have time to sit down and really get to know your slave. You need to find out what he likes and dislikes about being a slave...some like to be humiliated, some like to be forced to be bisexual with other men, some like to be cuckolded, others just like to be used and abused by a woman that would never talk to them if they didn't have money...

I fell into this lifestyle quite by accident and realized that I have a natural talent to work with my Slaves. I have been complimented many times on my wit, humour and demeanour with these kind of fetishes.

Although I am fairly new to this scene, I have had my trials and tribulations so far. It is very emotionally exhausting. Sometimes my slaves want more of my attention than I can give them and sometimes I think I may have to start devoting my time more to this lifestyle and look at it more a career than something fun to do.

I would love to talk to other Financial Dommess and read their stories and maybe get some tips, hints and suggestions for when I run into problems I am not so sure to avoid...

You are right, its not easy being a financial dominatrix, it does take the right sort of person, time, dedication and understanding. You need to enjoy it too.

I am getting started as a financial domme, and I was just wondering how you fellow dommes keep your identities safe, ie full names, addresses etc?

Hi, I have been until now only working Dom - not online. I would like to find financial slaves who would be faithful and would wear chastity belts/cages and in exchange for this they would have to pay me money and follow my orders.

I am new at this and live in the San Francisco bay area. If any of you ladies would be so kind as to email me with personal tips on being a financial domme (or) for friendship, please do - as it would be much appreciated.

Yeah, I know that my Amazing Mistress knows me better than anyone, it's like she knows what I want before I even know myself.

This is the most human side of this whole fetish I've seen so far - it's very refreshing.

I'm also new to this, but it comes very natural. I have one slave that I've collared & made my own & a few others that are proving themselves loyal during their probation period.

the problem is finding legit slaves so many thing they can chat and your time means nothing.. I love getting to know my slaves and building a relationship but if its not going anywhere financially it is stupid. Therapists get paid why shouldn't I?

I am thinking of becoming a financial dominatrix. I don't know where to begin, I was wondering if anyone could give me some handy tips. I would like to do this online, just to start off with and then most probably progress. Would really be grateful for some help on this. Thank you.
