CredAbility and ClearPoint Credit Counseling Solutions Agree to Merge

Tuesday, October 01, 2013

CredAbility and ClearPoint Credit Counseling Solutions announced on Oct. 1 that they have agreed to merge their two organizations, effective December 31, 2013. The combination will create the second largest nonprofit credit counseling organization in the nation, with 50 offices in 15 states from California to Florida. Together, the two agencies counseled nearly 2 million financially distressed households during the past five years.

By combining the strengths of each agency, the new organization will be able to provide a broader range of services to consumers nationwide. For example, ClearPoint is one of the leading agencies that helps people repay their credit card debt through the establishment of debt management plans. CredAbility is one of the largest housing and bankruptcy counseling agencies. Both are also recognized leaders in financial education and literacy.

CredAbility clients on a debt management plan will experience no immediate changes and should continue to make their regular monthly payments.
