

Keyword Search

Search

Related Articles

- How to enroll for classes in your Kaplan Unlimited Prep program Before You Start Your Kaplan NCLEX Course
- Courses Eligible for Visa Assistance \(Form I-20\)
- NIT NCLEX-RN Review Course Overview
- Academic Support for Kaplan Medical Programs

< Back to search results

Are Kaplan courses tax deductible?

In most cases, the answer is no, Kaplan classes are not tax-deductible because Kaplan Test Prep is not a Title IV institution and is not considered eligible under the IRS Education Deduction Guidelines. However, our accreditation status may be helpful for some of you to receive reimbursement from your employers. We are accredited with ACCET (Accrediting Council for Continuing Education and Training). You can find us on their website directory under the name Kaplan Test Prep.

Should you need it, our Federal Tax payer ID number is 22-2573250.

If you have any further questions regarding deductions, we advise that you discuss this with your tax accountant.

TAXES FOR INTERNATIONAL MEDICAL STUDENTS:

Tax laws are diverse and complicated. You are advised to contact a tax advisor or the IRS (www.irs.gov) or (1-800-874-1460) to ensure you receive accurate information. In particular, this section of the IRS website, may be helpful as it outlines filing requirements and exemptions.

In general, F-1 students are required to file Form 8843 to report their presence in the U.S. If the student has been employed, Form 1040 NR or Form 1040NR-EZ is also required. If no income was earned, only Form 8843 is required. The Form 8843 states to the U.S. government that the student was in the U.S. as a non-resident.

Note: Form 1098-T is a Tuition Statement issued by institutions whose courses are tax-deductible. Kaplan's tuition is not eligible for this tax deduction and thus Kaplan does not issue a form 1098-T.

Feedback

Was this article helpful?

Yes No