Membership Has Benefits !

...the return on our investment in IAPDA certification and membership for our settlement staff has been very good for our company...

...the training, certification and membership has given me the knowledge, confidence & credibility to compete with any in this fast paced industry...

The Debt Settlement industry is growing very rapidly... and it's time for you to get involved.

We all know consumer debt is out of control. Recent changes in Bankruptcy laws have made more difficult for consumers to clear debts, and housing prices are dropping causing a decrease in available cash for consumers. American consumers are over $2.56 Trillion in Debt, mostly with credit card and other unsecured debt.

People need help, and those who can help them are poised to succeed – and that's where we come in.

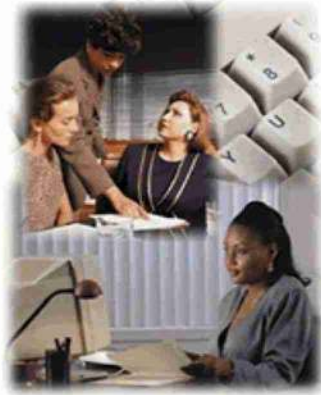

IAPDA membership is comprised of independent business professionals. Our membership includes individual entrepreneurs who wanted to start their own debt settlement business, and employees of debt settlement firms of all sizes - from small (fewer than 5 staff members) to many of North America's leading and largest Debt Arbitration & Settlement firms. We are the only Certification Program that is focused on Certifying individual Debt Arbitration & Settlement Professionals. Hence, we can serve anyone – from training and certifying one individual to 1,000 (and more). See our Member Links page for firms with individual IAPDA Certified members.

Training and Certification are the keys.

IAPDA Certified Debt Specialists are trained using industry standard training programs, and when you complete our program, you can call yourself a Certified Debt Specialist (CDS), which means you are a skilled debt arbitration & debt settlement professional (with the certification to prove it.) Our members are current with the laws pertaining to debt, credit and collection, and are able to represent their client's best interests during sensitive debt negotiations with creditors and collectors. IAPDA members are thoroughly trained and have learned negotiation skills to arbitrate debt settlements with creditors, collectors, and attorneys on behalf of their debtor clients.

Certification can mean so much to you and/or your company. States and provinces are rapidly adopting legislation like the Uniform Debt Management Services Act that will limit who can call themselves (and practice as) debt arbitration and settlement professionals. IAPDA is fully recognized in by states that have adopted the UDMSA, and is on track to be recognized by those states with pending legislation.

Consumer and Business Debt Arbitration/Negotiation and Settlement is one of North America's fastest growing industries, and is among the Top Rated Career Opportunities of the New Millennium.

Our Featured Question & Answer of the Day For Thursday

Q. Why can't I contact my creditors myself and do this?

A: You can try. Most times creditors are not willing to work with individuals and will not offer very favorable settlements. Plus, if you don't have the necessary negotiation skills and experience, you will never know if the creditor is giving you the best terms available. Because a Certified Debt Specialist works with thousands of creditors and has thousands of clients, creditors are willing to work with us. Certified Debt Specialists are trained in the "settlement language". They know the special terms that are available, and what solutions have been successful for others in similar situations.
