Creating value through service

CEO President - Robert Creel

Robert Creel began following his entrepreneurial ambitions at an early age, and since attending Southern Methodist University he has owned and operated a variety of businesses. This was until he found his true passion in the Debt Settlement industry after personally helping a family member negotiate and settle their credit card debt. He then decided he could help other people who felt they were living in a shadow of debt as well. As the CEO/President of Debt Professionals of America, he passionately guides the day-to-day management of all aspects of the organization. He is committed to ensuring that all clients receive the best service and results possible by being personally engaged in all services provided to our clients.

"The service we offer at Debt Professionals of America is something I truly believe in, and I consider it my personal duty to make sure every client is given the opportunity to be successful, and guide them down the road to financial freedom."

Vice President - Nikki Vrla
